

Visual stimulation is a very important part of your new baby's development. You can help your baby's brain thrive by stimulating visual input with high contrast patterns and images. Place the images 8 to 12 inches away from your baby's face. A great infant learning activity for the crib, play area, or in front of the car baby seat

